CITIZEN REPORTS 20 FAMILIES ARE MISSED IN CENSUS

At Least That Many and Perhaps More Is Declaration After Investigation.

LIVE ON PITTSBURG STREET

Overlooked Himself, Local Man Counts Personal Inquiry and Finds Many Others Are Not Enrolled. Special Investigator for Enumeration.

Connellsville residents who were missed in the census count are coming forward demanding that they be included in Connellsville's population. Persons living close to the business district claim to have been overlooked by the enumerators and one man who has conducted a personal investigation declares there are a number of families not enrolled.

Being missed himself the citizen inquired in his immediate neighborhood and discovered others had also been missed by the enumerators. Extending his investigation, he declares, he found families both in north and south parts of Pittsburgh street who had never been visited by an enumerator. His estimation of the number of families he knows to have been missed is 20.

Families who have not been enrolled by an enumerator are asked to announce the fact in order that a full count can be obtained.

W. L. Beuscher, assistant supervisor of the census in this district, conferred with Mayor Smart and others of Uniontown with reference to the complaints made at the county capital that there were substantial omissions in the enumeration of the inhabitants.

The omissions, about which complaints have been made, are said to have been due to lack of familiarity of part of the enumerators with the boundaries of the city, resulting in parts of some streets having been overlooked.

If sufficient discrepancies are discovered to justify a re-enumeration of the whole city it will be ordered, says the assistant Mr. Beuscher stated he had been authorized to confer to the parties with whom he conferred.

REORGANIZATION OF CO. D WILL GO OVER TOP BY MONDAY NIGHT

If the Young Men of the Community Appreciate Their Opportunity.

SONG DRILL IS STARTED

The final recruiting for Company D is moving along encouragingly and with every prospect that the young men of Connellsville and vicinity will not lose the last opportunity they have to retain the honor of making the unit a purely local institution.

At the smoker and lunch held in the armory last evening upwards of 50 members were present and new enthusiasm was aroused which it is believed will be the means of putting the reorganization across before Monday evening. Musical Director Harland was on hand and gave the company its first drill in singing the song adopted by the Sponsors Club. It went well with the boys and gives promise of becoming very popular. Under Director Harland's training the company, when fully recruited will be found to be as proficient at music-making as they will be efficient in the sterner duties of soldiering.

A valuable aid to Director Harland has been secured in Dr. Russell Engleke, who enlisted last evening. Dr. Engleke is an expert pianist and his services as accompanist will supply the only thing needed to make music a highly popular feature of membership in the new Company D.

The recruiting booth at Brimstone Corner was opened up this morning in charge of Fred Danner. During the afternoon Melvin Johnson was on duty explaining to prospective recruits the advantages of "signing up" without further delay.

The Sponsors are having a busy day of it. They were at the armory bright and early this morning to make preparations for serving lunch at noon and the dinner which is scheduled for this evening, between 5:30 and 7:00 o'clock.

An additional recruit was received this morning in the person of Fred Lowery of 1127 Spruance street. He is without previous military experience.

CANVASSERS FOR INTERCHURCH FUND TO GO OUT SUNDAY

Hundred Forty Thousand Is Goal Fixed For Local Congregations.

CHRISTIANS THE LARGEST

Embraces Building of a New Sunday School Plant and is for $66,000; United Presbyterians Have Goal of $33,335 for a Five-Year Period.

Several hundred canvassers will cover Connellsville and some nearby territory Sunday afternoon in the effort to raise, approximately, $150,000 for the Interchurch World Movement fund and other purposes, including a Sunday school plant building project by the First Christian church and for current expenses of Trinity Episcopal church. The task is the greatest ever attempted by the churches of the city and is the climax of the interchurch campaign which has been in progress for several weeks. Intensively for several days, a summary of what is sought in financial way is shown in the following figures, the goals of the churches participating:

Christian	$65,000
United Presbyterian	33,635
Presbyterian	13,000
United Brethren	4,906
Reformed	4,183
Methodist Protestant	3,000
Episcopal	1,800
"Friendly Citizens"	5,820
Church of the Brethren	500

The Methodist Episcopal congregation is not engaged in a campaign at this time for the reason that a year

At a meeting of team captains and workers last evening at the Christian church approximately $20,000 was subscribed by those present on the $66,000 fund of that church of which $7,000 is for one year's pledges on the Interchurch Movement fund. Twenty-six of those at the meeting were reported in the following class.

Final instructions were given the teams for the canvass, beginning at 9 o'clock tomorrow. All will meet at the church at 1:45, preparatory to the start, and will report again at 5:30 to make reports, which will be announced at the evening service. "We are expecting 100 others," said Campaign Director Benton Boyd.

United Presbyterians on Thursday evening subscribed $17,000, or over half of the quota for five years fixed for the congregation. Among the subscribers were 67 titheers.

Teams of the United Brethren church met at the church last evening and subscribed well toward the fund of nearly $5,000 that has been set. The team workers went 50 per cent over what was expected of them.

In all churches requests have been made of the members that they remain at home during the afternoon to receive the canvassers.

Some of the quotas are for one year, some for a term of years.

Simultaneously there will be canvassers in every community throughout the country.

What is not completed tomorrow will be continued during the week ending May 2.

Rev. G. L. Richardson is in charge of the campaign for the collection of the fund from persons not members of any church, but regarded as in sympathy with the movement.

REV. PURNELL'S FAREWELL

Dawson Pastor Will Preach Last Service There Sunday Evening.

Rev. W. B. Purnell, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Dawson, who has resigned to accept a call to an Ohio church, will deliver the farewell sermon Sunday evening. Sunday evening also, the sermon to the graduating class of the Dawson schools will be delivered at the Baptist church by Rev. G. M. Riley.

Because of the above events and the absence from town of the pastor, Rev. H. A. Baum, there will be no services in the evening at the Methodist Episcopal church. The usual morning service will be held.

WILL BE DINED

Canvassers of M. P. Church at Dunbar Have $1,000 Quota.

The canvassers of the Dunbar Methodist Protestant church in the interchurch drive will be given their dinner at the church tomorrow immediately after the service. In the three hours following the meal they expect to go over the quota of $1,000.

The team captains are Joseph Hall, Lloyd Gengawar, Thomas Clemons, Hiram Stutler, Albert Harvey and Earl Hardy.

WOMAN TAGGED AS A BOOSTER SAYS SHE HASN'T ANY CHANGE

People have become so accustomed to being charged for everything they get and have so often been held up on the streets for contributions that many thought they were being asked for another donation this morning when Boy Scouts pinned the "booster" tag on coat lapels of men and women as they passed Brimstone corner.

"Oh, I'm sorry, but I haven't any change," said one young lady as a Scout "tagged" her for a booster. The enterprising lad told her there was no charge for boosters of Company D.

FED ON PROMISES,

RAIL MEN TIRED OF

DELAYS, THEY SAY

Warning to Labor Board Issued By Official of Firemen's Brotherhood.

BASIC WAGE $6.50 ASKED

Lessons to Be Learned From Numerous Strikes in That Men Will Not Work When They Cannot Live Decently, Vice President Declares.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Warning against further delay in settling the wage demands of the 2,000,000 railroad workers of the country, Timothy Shea, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, told the Railroad Labor Board today that the men "were fed up on promises and dead tired of delays."

Mr. Shea presented the claims of the firemen and hostlers for a basic living wage of $6.50 with differential for skill, responsibility, experience and the increase in the cost of living since the demands were first presented last June. He told the board that the men will not work when they cannot live decently on the wages they are paid.

Cliffing the conclusion of the recent industrial conference that it was fundamental "that the basic wages of all employees should be adequate to maintain the employee and his family in reasonable comfort and with adequate opportunity for the education of his children," Mr. Shea said railroad workers had been patient and had been patriotic.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Hope of striking railroad workers in the New York-Jersey City district to regain their jobs with seniority ratings taken from them by the railroad managers centered today in a conference of strike leaders at Atlantic City at which the mayors of New Jersey cities will be asked to intercede for the men.

Home Changes Hands

C. E. Carand has sold his residence on Vine street, South Connellsville, to W. J. Currie of Patterson avenue.

Brother and Sister Are

REUNITED AFTER 13 YEARS

Separated After Desertion By Father They Are at Last Together.

A. and Joy T. Wells of Star Junction and has since been cared for as a loving child and daughter. She is now in her 14th year. Her mother has been an invalid for a number of years and also has been a widow for over three years.

"Bennie, now 21 years old, was taken when about nine years old from the aid society in Uniontown to Pittsburgh in order to secure him a good home. He chose as his foster parents A. and Mrs. Hill, who adopted and cared for him, loving him very dearly. Elmer was taken into a home unknown. Little Emma died at the aid society home in Uniontown within a few months after entering.

"Bennie, being the oldest child, could just faintly remember a little baby sister and has been trying to find trace of her ever since he became old enough to take the matter in hand. He had despaired of ever finding her until about three weeks ago when he received a letter from her and her foster mother, Mrs. Wells, with a picture enclosed. So overjoyed was Bennie to learn where his sister lived that he could not sleep, awaiting the time when he would start on the trip to see what he called his 'baby sister.'

"When he arrived at the home in the country where she lived, along with her mother there never was a happier boy than when he clasped her to his heart and kissed her lips for the first time since she was a tiny baby. So pleased was he with her and so loathe to be without her that he prevailed on the mother to let her go home with him for a visit, he being married and having two little girls of his own. So it was arranged for Bennie to go home and stay a while with her brother. So pleased was she with the town and his home people that she went back to tell her mother to get ready to move down near Bennie so that she could be near him and still live with her mother."

Long Search Rewarded

"Bennet (Clark) Hill and Ethel Mae (Clark) Wells were the oldest and youngest of four children that were left at the mercy of the cold world when their father, William Clark, went out hunting over 33 years ago, never to return to his family of little children, though he still lives."

Writes a correspondent of The Courier familiar with the circumstances. "Bennie, the oldest, a boy of eight on nine years, Ethel Mae was the baby, six weeks old. The other two, Elmer, about five, and little Emma, three, were all bright and happy little children until that fateful day when it became necessary because of the absence of the father to take the three oldest to the aid society in Uniontown, the mother keeping the baby Ethel Mae until her third year, at which time she was adopted by James

SCOTSDALE LETTER CARRIERS APPEAR ON ROUTES IN OVERALLS

OVERALL PARADE PARTICIPATED IN BY NEW YORKERS

Thousands March in Big Demonstration Against the High Cost of Clothes.

"OLE CLO'S" ARE POPULAR

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, April 24.—The four borough mail carriers appeared on their routes today clad in overalls as their part in the campaign against the high cost of clothing. One of the rural carriers and one clerk also donned the new garb.

Wearing of denim by the carriers was possible by a ruling of the Post Office Department that it would be permitted should the use become general on the part of the carrier force of the town. All agreed. Whether others of the clerks and rural carriers will follow suit has not been determined.

Mail carriers have been caught as others in the advance in the cost of clothing. Uniforms for which they formerly paid $11 now cost $23.

G. A. R. VETERANS GET

CORDIAL WELCOME ON

VISIT TO VANDERBILT

Speak to Students on Memorial Day Program Are Guests at Banquet.

A representative delegation from William F. Kurtz Post No. 104, Grand Army of the Republic, visited the public schools at Vanderbilt and Liberty yesterday and were cordially received by the teachers and students. The object of the visit was to interest the children in the Memorial Day exercises to be held at Vanderbilt on Monday afternoon, May 31.

The veterans visited the Vanderbilt schools first and after Commander W. P. Clark of the post informed the children of the part they were expected to take in the exercises, addresses were made by Rev. D. C. White of Vanderbilt, Captain Edmund Dunn, Colonel J. J. Barnhart, Lyman Strickler and W. H. Shaw. The schools were dismissed during the visit of the veterans and all the teachers and children assembled in the large school auditorium.

From Vanderbilt the committee went to the Liberty schools and in addition to the speakers at Vanderbilt, A. S. Haddock made a short talk. After the schools had been dismissed at noon, the visitors were invited to room No. 6 of the building, where a fine lunch, consisting of hot baked beans, two kinds of sandwiches, potato salad, apple and blackberry pie and coffee, awaited them. The lunch was prepared and served by the Liberty teachers, who are Miss Caroline Ober, Miss Mary Leighty, Miss Ethel Painter, Miss Gladys Porter, Miss Sara Schabbe and the principal, W. U. Keil, Jr. The Dawson schools were not visited on account of yesterday being examination day. The school children were asked to bring flags and flowers for the decoration of the graves of deceased soldiers. In the party of veterans were W. P. Clark, Colonel J. J. Barnhart, A. R. Branshear, William Dunn, L. L. Collins, Captain Edmund Dunn, A. S. Haddock, John Lint, W. H. Shaw, Lyman Strickler and L. W. Wolfe.

FOR BEN AVON FUND

General Worth Odd Fellows Vote $1,000 For Building Project.

After hearing a report from T. H. Edmonds, representative at a meeting of the directors of Ben Avon Orphan's home, near Pittsburgh, General Worth Lodge No. 386, I. O. O. F., last evening voted a donation of $1,000 to the building fund of the home. In the Ben Avon home at present are 52 boys and 39 girls, also two widows of Odd Fellows. The children are well trained and each is taught a useful occupation. Their spiritual welfare is also given consideration. Every Sunday afternoon services are held in the chapel. All the children are regular attendants at the Avalon Presbyterian church, of which many of the older ones are members. The building fund of $200,000 that is being raised is to provide additional accommodations.

General Worth lodge will celebrate the 101st anniversary of the order in America Friday evening, April 30, at the hall in East Crawford avenue.

FROST TONIGHT

Frost is forecast for tonight. Whether light or heavy the noon forecast does not say.

Up to this time there has been no damage to fruit, according to Colonel James J. Barnhart of Sunnyside, Dunbar township, who said he made an examination of buds to determine.

Judge Brothhead Dies

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Judge J. Davis Brothhead, former representative in Congress from the 26th Pennsylvania district, died suddenly last night at his residence here. He was 51 years old and came to Washington in 1917 to take charge of the corporation section of the alien property custodian's office. The body will be sent to Easton, Pa., Monday for burial.

Drilling Machinery

For Gilmore Well Expected Any Day Drilling to Begin Soon.

The machinery needed to start drilling operations by the Connellsville Oil & Drilling company on the Gilmore farm has been shipped from Pittsburgh. It is expected to arrive any day. Work of erecting it will require but a short time. Drilling will then begin in earnest and be pushed as rapidly as possible.

A. C. Black, the rig builder who has completed the construction of the 54-foot derrick, has gone to Mount Pleasant to put up a rig in that section. His work on the Gilmore farm is pronounced by experts to be of a very substantial character, much more so than found in other oil and gas fields.

STRIKING TRAINMEN AT DICKERSON RUN MARK UP FOR WORK

Break Occurs in Ranks of Railroaders When Majority Report This Morning.

FIREMEN ARE STILL OUT

Between 25 and 30 of Them Refuse to Return to Work and the Movement of Trains in the Yards is Held Up; Glenwood Men on Jobs.

A break in the ranks of the striking Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad men at Dickerson Run occurred this morning when between 250 and 300 of the strikers, including brakemen and conductors reported for duty at 8 o'clock. The movement of trains, however, is still held up by the firemen, who are holding out. There are about 25 or 30 of these.

It is not known whether the striking trainmen elsewhere on the system have returned, but it is understood the firemen everywhere are still out.

The trainmen held a meeting last night at which it was determined to report for duty. Without firemen, however, no trains can be moved and the entire yard is still idle. Just what action the company intends to take is unknown. It was reported that some Pittsburg & Lake Erie men, presumably the firemen, were meeting this morning, but nothing concerning the gathering was learned.

The firemen are making no statements, maintaining their silence. Today marks the end of the second week in which no trains have moved through the yards and the tie-up is still complete.

The Baltimore & Ohio men who had remained out on strike in the Glenwood yards returned to work at 7 o'clock this morning and now freight is moving freely to the west. There had been some difficulty in getting trains through this troubled territory, but today the situation was cleared.

All men are at work on the Connellsville and Cumberland divisions and freight traffic to the east is becoming more normal. The freight traffic for shipments west was still in effect at noon today but word from the Baltimore & Ohio depot said it would probably be removed soon. Freight shipments are heavy.

PLUMBER BURNED BY ACID

Staff Splashed Over James Murray's Face When Coil Slips.

James Murray of the West Side, employed by William Sellers, was severely burned about the face and hands by acid about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon while cleaning a copper water heater coil. Sulfuric acid was being used to clean the coil and when it slipped and fell the acid was dashed over the plumber.

The acid was neutralized somewhat by the use of medicated alcohol. This happened to be sitting nearby, Murray having need for it only a few moments previous when he got a few drops of acid on his hand. Mr. Sellers, who was standing nearby when the accident occurred, washed Murray's face in the neutralizer which eased the pain considerably until a physician could arrive.

Mr. Sellers was about six feet away when the coil slipped and was also splashed with the acid. Only a few drops reached his face, however, most of it going on his clothes. None of the dangerous fluid entered Murray's eyes fortunately, but his face is badly burned.

GASER AT WEST NEWTON

Well Comes in With Reported Flow of 17,500,000 Feet.

WEST NEWTON, April 24.—A 17,500,000 foot gas well was brought in Thursday on the John Thropp farm, across the river from West Newton. The well and a large lease is owned by the Coal Hollow Gas and Oil company, composed entirely of West Newton residents.

The big gas well capped the "Big Injun" sand at 1,350 feet and the flow of gas registered by gauge, a little over the 17,500,000 foot mark. As soon as the gusher was struck, the People's Gas company began preparations for laying a gas main to the well and it is expected the gusher will be delivering gas within a week.

H. C. Brehm, the jeweler of West Newton, is president of the company.

DRILLING MACHINERY

For Gilmore Well Expected Any Day Drilling to Begin Soon.

The machinery needed to start drilling operations by the Connellsville Oil & Drilling company on the Gilmore farm has been shipped from Pittsburgh. It is expected to arrive any day. Work of erecting it will require but a short time. Drilling will then begin in earnest and be pushed as rapidly as possible.

MISS ELIZABETH MAY BROWN

TO WED ROBERT CRITCHFIELD
Mrs. David Penman Brown of South Pittsburg, Tenn., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth May Brown, to Robert LeRoy Critchfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Scott Critchfield of Altoona. Because of the prominence of Miss Brown the engagement is one of unusual interest to Connellsville society. In addition to being a popular member of the city's social set Miss Brown is prominent in musical circles of Fayette county, being a soloist of exceptional ability. For the past several years she has been a successful instructor in voice, having large classes in Connellsville and surrounding towns. She is a soloist at the United Presbyterian church, a member of the music club of Scottdale; for the past two years has been chairman of the music committee of the Women's Culture club, and has taken an active part in many of the leading musical entertainments given in Connellsville and vicinity. Mr. Critchfield is train dispatcher for the Western Maryland railroad at Cumberland, and has a number of friends in Connellsville, having been employed here at one time in a similar capacity. He is well known and popular in railroad circles. The engagement will terminate in a May wedding.

Fisher-Rankin

An interesting spring wedding was that of Miss Myra Virginia Fisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Fisher of South Connellsville, and John Wesley Rankin, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rankin of Brownfield; solemnized this morning at 7:30 in the parsonage of the First Methodist Episcopal church, with Rev. G. L. C. Richardson, the bride's pastor, officiating. The bride wore a smartly tailored traveling suit of midnight blue serge, a black hat, with an ostrich banding, and a corsage of pink sweet peas and sweetheart roses. There were no attendants and the ceremony was witnessed only by Miss Anna Fisher, a sister of the bride. Mrs. Rankin was graduated from the Gibson high school and is very popular among her wide circle of friends. Prior to her marriage she was bookkeeper at the F. T. Evans store. The bridegroom is a prominent coal operator and is one of the best known residents of Brownfield. Mr. and Mrs. Rankin left this morning for Linton to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. C. R. McMillan. Upon their return they will be at home at Brownfield.

Birthday Party Given

In honor of the 34th birthday of her daughter, Miss Rhoda, Mrs. R. A. Longwell entertained last evening at her home in the Windsor apartments, South Pittsburg street. Guests were members of the Youngloughery Camp Fire girls and a few other friends of Miss Longwell. Various games were played after which a daintily appointed luncheon was served. There was a birthday cake, with 14 candles, significant of the honor guest.

Dinner for Bible Class

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 24.—S. C. Stevenson, teacher of the Men's Bible class of the Re-Union Presbyterian church, entertained the members of the class and the eldership at a course dinner last evening at his home in Eagle street. Places were set for 30. Jonquil's were used in the decorations.

Miscellaneous Shower

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 24.—Miss Charlotte Benford gave a miscellaneous shower last evening at her home in Vine street for Miss Ella Miller, who is to be married soon to Ray Knobel of Scottdale. Miss Miller is a teacher in the schools of Mount Pleasant township.

Birthday Surprise

A very enjoyable birthday surprise was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Abraham of Perry Monday night in honor of Miss Reata Abraham's seventeenth birthday anniversary.

The affair was planned by her young friends, who with the cooperation of Mrs. Abraham were able to give the young lady a complete surprise. She had been attending to her duties after supper, when a loud knock called her to the door, and there in a crowd stood the company, and she was nonplused to know what it meant until some one said, "seventeen," when the fact dawned upon her that it was her birthday. They were invited in and after spending the evening with games and music, a splendid lunch was served. Miss Abraham received many valuable and useful gifts, made more valuable by the love of the friends who so liberally remembered her. It was a late hour when the company dispersed, each wishing Miss Abraham very many happy returns.

Delightful Party

Miss Evelyn Furlong gave a delightfully appointed party last evening at her home in East Green street in honor of Frederick Port of Lincoln avenue, who expects to leave about May 1 for Asaph, Tioga county, where he will locate with his brother, Harold, who is a forester at that place. Forty guests attended and spent the evening at dancing. Spring flowers formed the pretty decorations in all the rooms on the first floor. Delicious refreshments were served at a late hour. Out of town guests were Miss Frances Myford of Mount Pleasant, Miss Thelma Johnson of Fayette City, and Miss Mildred McCombs of Carlisle.

G. R. Class Meets

The regular meeting of the G. R. class of the First Methodist Episcopal church, with Rev. G. L. C. Richardson, the bride's pastor, officiating. The bride wore a smartly tailored traveling suit of midnight blue serge, a black hat, with an ostrich banding, and a corsage of pink sweet peas and sweetheart roses. There were no attendants and the ceremony was witnessed only by Miss Anna Fisher, a sister of the bride. Mrs. Rankin was graduated from the Gibson high school and is very popular among her wide circle of friends. Prior to her marriage she was bookkeeper at the F. T. Evans store. The bridegroom is a prominent coal operator and is one of the best known residents of Brownfield. Mr. and Mrs. Rankin left this morning for Linton to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. C. R. McMillan. Upon their return they will be at home at Brownfield.

SUIT OF MANY RUFFLES

The suit has many modes, this summer, and little wonder for there are many modes to suit. And that is the why of this blouse model that is so extremely different from the short jacketed things one has been used to seeing for spring. The skirt is tiered to match the ruffle of the coat's bodice. But the brown in the color, cashmere velours—a sort of twill looking material is what it is made from. A tan leather belt adds a touch of smartness.

JOINT OCCUPATION

Of Ruhr Basin by Anglo-French Troops Proposed by Lloyd George. By Associated Press.

PARIS, April 23.—Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain would approve of Anglo-French occupation of the Ruhr district of Germany in the event the Berlin government should refuse to live up to the revised terms of the Versailles treaty, says "Pictorial," political editor of the Echo of Paris.

The editor says intimation to this effect has come through a member of the British premier's staff for the purpose of, overcoming Premier Millerand's opposition to revision of the German treaty.

SAMUEL STILLWAGON.

Samuel Stillwagon, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stillwagon of East Crawford avenue, died at Fairmont, W. Va., here he had been located for some years as night roundhouse foreman for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. The deceased was well known here. He was a member of the Macabees lodge and was well known in railroad circles. In addition to his widow, Mrs. Louise Moore Stillwagon, the deceased is survived by his parents, and the following brothers and sisters: Donald, Patterson, Robert and Newell, and Catherine Ramona, all at home; Mrs. George McDuff of Scottdale; Mrs. Donald Brill of Fairmont, W. Va., and another married sister living in Erie. The body will arrive here tonight and will be removed by Funeral Director J. E. Sims to the home of the deceased's parents. Notice of funeral later.

MRS. J. M. BEARD.

The body of Mrs. J. M. Beard arrived here this morning from Confluence and was removed by Funeral Director Charles C. Mitchell to Hill Grove cemetery for interment.

DR. A. S. HAGAN.

The funeral of Dr. Arthur S. Hagan, held yesterday afternoon at the family residence in Uniontown, was attended by many friends of the deceased of Uniontown and other parts of the county. Rev. Dr. C. W. Tinsley of Pittsburg, a former pastor of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church of Uniontown, and Dr. J. M. Thoburn, the present pastor, officiated. All Uniontown schools closed at 11 o'clock.

out of respect for Dr. Hagan, who was a member of the board. Pallbearers were Harry Weyel, W. D. McCormick, Dr. C. H. LaClair, E. T. Chamberlain, A. D. Jaquette and A. H. Cowan, all of Uniontown; Dr. T. B. Echar of this city and J. W. Freeman of Derry.

FRANK P. STEWART.

Frank P. Stewart, 30 years old, a former resident of Brownsville, died Friday at his home in Pittsburg. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ella Kinsinger Stewart, and two children, and his mother and sister, both of Brownsville.

CLARENCE TUNING.

Clarence Tuning, 18 years old, of Coalingburg, died Friday morning in the Uniontown hospital following an operation for appendicitis. The young man had been working at Akron, O., and came to his home to spend his birthday, April 4, remaining for a visit. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Tuning of Coalingburg, four brothers and one sister. Funeral services will be held at the Coalingburg Methodist Protestant church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, with Rev. O. W. Bolton and Rev. D. C. Miner of Dunbar, officiating. The interment will be made at Percy.

CHARLES H. CRAIG.

Charles Hammond Craig, eight weeks old, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Craig of Hickory Bottom, died very suddenly Friday afternoon. Funeral services were held this afternoon, with Rev. J. L. Proudfoot, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. The interment was made in Hill Grove cemetery.

Whooping Cough.

In this disease it is important that the cough be kept loose and expectoration easy. This is best accomplished by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This preparation also tends to liquefy the tough mucus, making it easier to expectorate and renders the fits of coughing less frequent and less severe. It has been used in many epidemics of this disease with the best results. It contains no opium or other narcotic.—Adv.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Maglieri and family of Scottdale extend their sincere thanks to all those who assisted them during the illness and death of their son and brother, Angelo Maglieri. Especially do they thank those who sent floral tributes and donated cabs and automobiles.—Adv.—24-1t.

Cards of Thanks.

I wish to thank those who so kindly extended their sympathy and assistance during the illness and death of my husband, Jas. H. Barnhart, also the ministers for their nice service and the quartet for their music at the funeral. Mrs. Jas. H. Barnhart.—Adv.—24-1t.

AMERICAN LEGION HOME AT SCOTSDALE OPENED TO PUBLIC

Hundreds Visit and Admire Quarters in the Reid Building.

CLUB ROOM LUXURIOUS PLACE

Is Done in Green, With Furnishings to Match; Dance Hall, in White, Suitably Decorated; Artistic Effects
in Card Room and Pool Room.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, April 24.—The luxurious quarters of Thomas A. Llewellyn Post, The American Legion, in the Reid building, were formally opened to the public Friday afternoon.
Hundreds of persons thronged the place during the opening hours, noon to midnight. Committees of the members of the post were on the receiving line and ready to give any information desired.

The home is the second in Westmoreland county to be opened by a Legion post.

Perhaps the center of attraction was the club room, beautifully done in blue, with mission furniture. Hung on the walls were a dozen mission-framed photographs of men who were killed or died in the service of the country during the World War. Four are yet to be put on display. Those already there are of Thomas A.
Llewellyn, Floyd Brookman, Ralph
Walker, Reginald Humphries, Myril
Snyder, Wilbur Hamilton, Dwight
Hixon, Ray Miller, Lew Killinger,
Raymond Massey, Joseph A. Tanner
and Henry A. Baranum.

All of the rooms are beautifully furnished. The general effect in the reading room is green, green wicker furniture matching the walls. The pool room and the card room are done in blue, the dance hall in white, with decorations of blue.

MANY ANXIOUS HOURS OF WORRY

ABOUT THAT CROUPEY CHILD AVOIDED FOR 30 CENTS.

The Connellsville Drug Co. and the Broadway Drug Store, Scottdale, sell a preparation called SIM-CO SALVE that will afford more real relief in one night for croup, cold on the lungs, etc., than all the old fashioned internal coughs and syrups you have ever tried. It is an active antiseptic salve that reaches both the outside and the inside of the lungs, that is why it is so unusually effective. It is the new antiseptic salve to kill the germ and at the same time is soothing, healing and refreshing to the fevered child or adult. The same salve that is penetrating from without by application to the chest and throat, is reaching the inside by inhalation at the same time and without the use of patent inhalers or expense other than the trifle paid for the salve, only 20c, and besides the Connellsville Drug Co. and the Broadway Drug Store, Scottdale, sell it on the "money back if it fails" plan.

SIM-CO SALVE does what home ability can never do; what remedy for these ailments can compare with SIM-CO SALVE, which reaches the inside of the lungs.

The name SIM-CO applied to medicines is your assurance of quality, purity, uniformity of strength and accuracy in compounding. It is used successfully as a salve for sprains, cure muscles, rheumatism, neuralgia, jame back, or other similar affections.
Go down to the Connellsville Drug
Co. or the Broadway Drug Store, Scottdale, and get a jar today and try it and then tell us which is the best ointment on the market today. Sold at 20c, 60c and $1.00 per jar. If your druggist does not keep it, order from the Wm. M. Simpson Drug Co., Wholesale Druggists, Wilkesburg Station, Pittsburg, Pa.—Adv.

SATURDAY EVENING, APRIL 24, 1926

FAYETTE, AN IMPERIAL COUNTRY

The statistics of the growth of industrial operations in Fayette during the three years ended December 31, 1913, present an astounding record.
With production valuation increased from $34,309,200 in 1913 to $154,070-500 in 1915, there was furnished a most remarkable instance of gain. In like manner the faith of the people in the stability of the county's enterprise was shown by having increased the amount of capital invested in its industries from $78,553,900 to $109,393-400 during the same period. While the number of industrial plants were decreasing in other counties those in Fayette increased from 333 in 1913 to 421 in 1915. If other proof were needed of the progress of our industries it is furnished by the gain of 7,417 in the number of persons given gainful employment, the total in 1915 having been 42,794.

The index to gain which to individual workers is of most significance and importance is the payroll of the employing enterprises. In 1913 the employees were paid a total of $30,376-990. In 1915 the payroll had practically doubled, the amount having been $60-180,200.

Coal mining and coke making naturally held first place both in value of product and amount of wages paid in a single industry. The 23,917 persons engaged in mining alone were paid $37,000,000 in wages and produced products worth $57,000,000. The 8,422 men engaged distinctively in coke making were paid $10,000,000 in wages while producing coke that sold for $73,000,000, or a total of $47,000,000 in wages and $130,000,000 in value of products in the country's chief industry.
Other industries had proportionately as large payrolls and outputs valued accordingly.

Omitting agriculture, which is another big factor in the life of the county, these statistics give a new conception of the magnitude of industrial operations in Fayette which may justly lay claim to being one of the imperial counties of the imperial Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

RENTERS AND HOME BUILDING

A Connelville realty owner, who rents a number of houses, thinks the action of the city council of Detroit in doubling the assessed valuation of a landlord who had more than doubled the rates of rent, forms as instructive a lesson for renters as it does for protesting landlords in that it should be an incentive for the former to provide their own homes.
There may be some virtue in this suggestion but it should be borne in mind that all tenants are not circumstances so they can build. Many are engaged in employment of such character that they do not know how long they will remain in one place but by far the larger number and, in these days of high cost of living, that they are without means wherewith to finance a building operation, even under the building and loan plan. If the prices for labor and material were on anything like the pre-war basis there is little doubt that building operations would by this time have been of very large proportions. It is the ambition of almost every tenant to at some time secure a home of his own many have been planning for a realization of their hopes, but in the present circumstances there is little prospect that the average wage-earner will be able to carry his or her home building plan to completion, at least not for some time to come.

True, as the owner of renting property referred to has pointed out, tenants have become more exacting in their requirements. They are no longer content to live in tumbledown shacks or in houses without those modern conveniences which contribute to the health and comfort of the occupants. Such properties are not in demand and are taken only because other or better are not obtainable. In many cases this condition evidences a disposition to extravagance but generally speaking it is proof of the fact that better standards of living are being adopted on part of the average tenant. Property owners ought, therefore, to be alive to the situation and be prompt to place their properties in condition to attract instead of repel renters, if they are unwilling to do so they will find when conditions make an active building campaign a possibility, they will have difficulty in finding tenants. Then will the lesson of the Detroit incident begin to bear fruit and to this landlord's disadvantage.

CONTRIBUTOR'S NAMES WANTED

The Courier received two communications, one relating to soldiers' bonuses and one to daylight saving, both of which it will be glad to use if the authors will kindly remember the rule of editorial offices requiring names to be given—not for publication, but for the editor's information.

Time to End The Orgie

Philadelphia Press.

When this country went into the war it went in all over, and with a determination to win. The government was given all it asked for in men and money to support its operations. The people made all the sacrifices, required of them, and made those sacrifices in a patriotic and truly American spirit.
Millions of dollars were made available by loans and unprecedented internal taxes. Every department and bureau at Washington greatly augmented the number of its employees, and its demands for money were complied with by Congress with practically no hesitation. Billions were expended in the most lavish and extravagant way, and there was a scandalous waste of effort. The country was unprepared for war, and the necessary haste was costly. The people made no complaint.
It was not a question of money with them; it was a question of winning the war at whatever cost.

But the war has been substantially over for nearly a year and a half.
The army has been brought home from Europe and demobilized. It is time to reduce the enormous force of civilian employees which the war brought into activity. Two hundred thousand of these in excess of the number employed before the war are carried on the government pay roll, and while there have been some reductions, they are insignificant as related to the whole. Now useless bureaux are maintained. The orgie of extravagance goes on, when care in national resources and attention to readjustment are the urgent need in government activity.

We have an enormous debt which must be carried. Interest due on the ten billions of loans to foreign governments has not been paid. It is estimated that there will be a deficit at the close of the current fiscal year of three billions—that is, the government will have incurred obligations to that amount in excess of its revenue for the year. Congress has underaken to curb some of the extravagance and waste, but the habit maintains in the executive departments, and those who would bring conditions back to something like a peace basis get no encouragement.

The public is more than justified in the suspicion that all this overgrown civilian machinery, the most of which is no longer required for war work, is being maintained for the use of the Democratic party in the presidential campaign upon which the country is entering, and that a considerable part of the cost of that campaign will be paid by the country's already overburdened taxpayers. We have paid a high price for a few years of Democratic domination and it is now time to end the orgie.

REWARD

Let laughter pay me for my toil
And I'll not ask for gold,
I'll gladly till my patch of soil
And rest when I am old.
If those who know me best shall smile,
I'll count my drudgery worth while.
I'll hold the plow or break the gale,
Or humble post I'll keep,
Nor will I say I've lived in vain
Though little I may reap.
If those who love me are content,
I'll count my time and strength well spent.

Let them be glad to kiss my cheek
And proud to walk with me,
I'll not greater glory seek Nor ask a larger fee.
If they rejoice in what I bring,
I shall not envy prince or king.
If I can wrest from stonyborn clay
Or dull and tedious task
Their laughter and their love each day,
No greater joy I'll ask.
If I can keep the needs supplied,
With life I shall be satisfied.

I'll not begrudge the dreary hours
Nor mind the summer's heat.
If I can strew their path with flowers
And make their journey sweet,
If they ask my hands can give,
I'll gladly work and gladly live.

OVER BILLION IS COST OF FEDERAL CONTROL OF ROADS

Latest Estimate Places Loss Due to the Government's Experiment at $1,229,000,000.

Total loss to the government growing out of federal control of the railroads is estimated by the House appropriations committee at more than $1,229,000,000. This includes the $225,000,000 estimated as guarantees to the roads under the terms of the transportation act.

The actual loss during the 26 months of active government control was placed at $904,000,000. The government had loaned $852,000,000 to the roads, and said that since much of this went to weaker lines to prevent receivership during federal operation, all of this sum probably would not be recovered.

The committee was reporting on the emergency deficiency appropriation measure in which $50,000,000 was included for the Railroad Administration. Director General Hines has asked for $250,000,000 to wind up the administration's affairs, but the committee cut the total $30,000,000 and recommended that the treasury be instructed to purchase $90,000,000 worth of Liberty Bonds held by the Railroad Administration, thus making available that additional amount for winding up the administration's affairs.

Among The Churches

TRINITY EPISCOPAL—Corner of Fairview avenue and Prospect street. Frederic Welton, rector. Third Sunday after Easter. Church school at 9:45; evening service at 7:45. Wednesday evening, at 7:30, confirmation class.

UNITED BRETHREN—Sunday school at 9:45. Preaching at 11, followed with consecration of teams for campaign canvass. Junior Y. P. S. C. E. at 2:30; seniors at 6:30. Preaching at 7:30. P. R. Moon and L. G. Hoover will be the lay speakers at the morning service. There will be several speakers in the evening. Let all captains and team members and also all members be present at the services, morning and evening. Members of the congregation are requested to be home Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock, and be ready to sign up when the canvassers call. "Let's get it!" All members are requested to be in prayer for five minutes, beginning at 2 o'clock, for the success of the drive and victory shall be ours.

EVANGELICAL ASSOCIATION—South Connelville. J. O. Bishop, pastor. Sunday school at 9:30. Divine worship at 10:45. Y. P. A. at 6:45. Preaching at 7:45. The subject for the morning discourse is "The Wise Steward," being the first of a series on "Stewardship." The evening sermon will be delivered to the Gibson high school graduates, the subject being "Forward." All are kindly invited to attend. The patrons of the school are requested to attend the evening service. Parents are urged to send their children to the Sunday school. The school is progressing very rapidly, and there is yet room for you.

TRINITY LUTHERAN—Rev. William H. Hetrick, pastor. Bible school with adult classes, 10 o'clock. Installation of pastor by president of synod, Rev. E. B. Burgess, D. D., 11 o'clock. Worship with sermon by the pastor, 7:30; theme, "Life Abundant."

DAVIDSON CHAPEL—Rev. J. W. Morgan will preach at Davidson Chapel Sunday afternoon at 2:30. This chapel was dedicated last Sunday. It sits on the hill above the coke ovens. Cross the bridge at Silgo. Everybody is welcome.

ABOUT CHURCH NOTICES.

Notices of Sunday services for the church column must be in this office by Friday evening to insure publication Saturday. None will be accepted by telephone. A postcard will answer the purpose.

FIRST BAPTIST—South Pittsburg street. J. Earle Edwards, minister. In business for a New World. Sunday 9:45 church school and Baracosa. 11, worship and sermon by the minister. 6:30 Women's study and young people's study. 8:30, "The World in Pictures." Everybody always welcome.

Meetings week days, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. The public is cordially invited to attend all of the above services, especially those who do not attend any other house of religious worship.

FIRST U. P.—South Pittsburg street. Francis J. Scott, pastor. Preaching at 11 and 7:30 by the minister. Morning subject, "A Message From a Book Little Understood." Evening subject, "Why Not?" Sunday school at 9:45. Victory prayer meeting on Wednesday evening at 7:45.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE—Dunham building, North Pittsburg street. Church and Sunday school at 11 o'clock. Sundays, Wednesday at 8 P. M. Sermon for Sunday, "Probation After Death." Reading room open daily, 2 to 4 P. M.

TRINITY REFORMED—South Pittsburg and East Green streets, L. G. Nace, pastor. Sunday school at 9:45. At 11 the pastor will deliver an illustrated lecture on the "Forward Movement," touching every phase of the work of the church at home and abroad. These slides, about 75 in number, have just the past week been released from the office in Philadelphia. Come and get more knowledge and information about your church in one hour than you get at the rest of your life. Another treat is in store for all who attend Trinity at 7:45 P. M., when the pastor will speak on "A Visit to Eastern and Southern Asia," using about 100 colored slides. All always welcome.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN—J. L. Proudfoot, pastor. Sunday school at 9:45. Morning service at 11; subject of sermon, "Christ's Test of a Man's Religion." Canvassers will be served luncheon after the service. Evening service at 7:30. Report of the canvassing teams. Wednesday evening prayer meeting at 7:45.

Sermon by the pastor on "The Deception of Sin."

ST. JOHN'S GERMAN LUTHERAN, Carnegie avenue and East South street. George Dietz, pastor. Services at 10:30. Subject taken from Psalm I. Sunday school at 9. In the afternoon

Rev. Dietz will hold German services and holy communion at Uniontown in the First Methodist Protestant church. All are cordially invited.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"THE VEILED MARRIAGE"—With Anna Lehr in the leading role, and U-35 pictures taken from a German submarine, are being shown today. The central figures in "The Veiled Marriage" are Margaret Fallon and John Browning, together with the busy villain, Fred Peyton. The plot treats of a strange complication of affairs, in which fate shuffles two of its victims into the same channel.

Margaret Fallon lives with her father in a modest apartment, worshipped at a distance by Jimmy Dolan, "a thorn in the side of the police force." John Browning, a young man in easy circumstances, and much addicted to the use of liquor, is a friend of Fred Peyton, a member of society usually mentioned in the list of "those present." Peyton, meeting Margaret Fallon by chance one day, becomes a frequent visitor at her home. One evening when they are returning from a dinner, a gas explosion overturns their automobile, and temporarily blinds Margaret. Her father, who has come to the door to look for her, is also injured. As the production nears the climax the spirit of romance prevails.

THE SOISSON.

"PARLOR, BEDROOM AND BATH"—The famous New York farce hit will be presented Monday night. The play is in three acts. It is said to contain one of the most original plots embodied in a comedy. As far as can be learned, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" concerns the tribulations of a meek and modest young husband whose wife is proud of his imaginary amours. Compelled to sustain this romantic reputation or lose the regard of his spouse the young benedict becomes involved with more venturesome ladies than he had ever seen under one roof. The scene of his mad escapade is a private suite consisting of a parlor, bedroom and bath in a lonely way-side inn. The developments that ensue promise to furnish theatregoers of this city with one of the most amusing theatrical entertainments of recent years.

THE ARCADE.

With Mrs. Eva Fay, the high priestess of the weird art of thaumaturgy, as the feature attraction, and Willard's Bantam Beauties in addition, the patrons of the Arcade theatre look forward to a week of magnificent entertainment. Mrs. Fay is perhaps too well known in Connelville to require any explanations of her wonderful demonstrations, having played as the headline vaudeville attraction in all the larger cities for many seasons. Seated on a raised dais, Mrs. Fay rapidly calls the names of those who have written questions and in short terse sentences answers the most personal questions that have been troubling the seekers of knowledge and eight percent of the answers are correct. Mrs. Fay is one of the most learned persons in the world in the psychic and occult lines. A real daughter of India and her absolutely puzzling and astounding powers were taught her by the Indian Yogis. Mrs. Fay possesses natural gifts that make her seem uncanny yet she claims nothing for her work other than to give entertainment. A novel and entertaining musical comedy, Willard's Beauty Bantams, will round out the biggest and best vaudeville attractions seen in Connelville this season. Usual popular prices will prevail throughout the engagement.

RAILROADERS' WELL

W. E. West of Connelville Member of Board of Directors.

W. E. West of Connelville is a member of the board of directors of The Reed-Lindsay Oil & Gas company, promoted by four well-known Baltimore & Ohio engineers and one fireman. They are going to have a well so that it will be strictly a railroad proposition from start to finish and have found a driller named Boggs, who is an old locomotive engineer.

George K. Reed, a Pittsburg engineer, and well known here as president of the company, which has leased an acre of ground on the Coulter road near Coulter, because it is right in the center of a section that is held by some of the large gas companies and surrounded by producing wells.

Took a Severe Cold.

"Our five year old son Paul took a severe cold last winter that settled on his lungs and he had terrible coughing spells. We were getting worried about him as the medicine we gave him did not help him in the least. A neighbor spoke so highly of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy that I got a bottle of it, and the first dose benefited him so much that I continued giving it to him until he was cured," writes Mrs. Frank Crocker, Panna, Ill.—Adv.

BOWELS SO BAD HE TOOK QUART OF MINERAL WATER A DAY

Mr. Whitesides Was in a Bad Way; Tells How He Got Over It.

"I suffered for years with stomach trouble and constipation. I got so I could eat nothing but soft food and had to take a quart of mineral water a day for my bowels. I decided to try Milks Emulsion and have used three bottles. The results have been wonderful. The soreness left my stomach, I can eat solid food, my bowels have improved and I feel like a new man. Anyone suffering as I did should lose no time in getting on Milks Emulsion."—M. F. Whitesides, 214 1/2 S. 6th St., Springfield, Ill.

The more physics you take, the more you'll need. Break away from them. Milks Emulsion costs nothing to try. Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in restoring and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children. No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 80c and $1.50 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

TONY BUFANO HAS SAME SPIRIT IN BASEBALL THAT MARKED HIS CAREER IN RING OF YEARS AGO

With Him at Head of Directors, Clam Here Will Be a Success.

COOPERATION IS NEEDED

It seems the rule rather than the exception, no matter what line of sport one follows, as a pastime or a vocation, he will invariably turn to baseball to fill an office as umpire, manager or one of the directors of a club. Such a person is A. Bufano, better known as "Tony." A decade ago this gentleman was rated one of the best boxers that ever stepped between the ropes of a prize ring. His battles with the gloves are often recalled by the followers of the ring of his day.

An instance that happened to Tony is well worth repeating, although it did not happen to be a contest that was advertised to take place. When the old opera house in Pittsburgh street was a mecca for the boxing fans of a decade ago, there came one night to this resort a show which also had on the bill a fighter of renown who was offering to meet all comers, with the agreement that he would stop them before four rounds or forfeit a stipulated amount of money. Bufano was taking in the show as a spectator only and had no intentions of donning the gloves that night.

When the boxer offered to meet any man in the house he never got a tumble, there being no one that wanted to fight the heavyweight. Finally, he almost begged some one to go on with him. He became so very insistent that the followers of Bufano began urging the little fighter to go on with the wandering champion. With the call of "Bufano!" "Bufano!" and the taunts of the pug on the stage, Tony finally consented, after the big one said "Come on Bufano, I won't hurt you."

This remark roused Bufano's ire and in no time he was stripped and ready for action. The road champion had to stop Tony in four rounds or he returned a loser. At the end of that time Bufano was not only on his feet but was hammering the daylight out of the visitor—nor would he stop until the police jumped into the ring to save the battered "champion."

This was only one instance of the bulldog spirit that Bufano has often shown. He is not of the quitting class that has a streak of "yellow" for a backbone. In baseball when "his nibe" said you were out, when he was umpiring, the best way was to agree with him.

Such a man is "Tony" Bufano, chairman of the board of directors of the Conneltsville Baseball club. With his indomitable will putting baseball back on the map in this city is bound to succeed. Once the project was broached to him he took hold and assisted and directed the affairs of the club that from a tentative affair has grown into a reality. It is men such as Bufano who are behind the Conneltsville club. You want baseball here. Well, affiliate yourself with men as are being mentioned in these columns. Then you will have baseball. Can there be any question that the club will open as slated on May 15 with men like Bufano back of the enterprise?

Patty Brannigan, who is well remembered in this city, but when at home hangs his hat in New Castle, has started training, intending to begin an active campaign. Patty is an old hand but seems to fight as good as ever.

BASEBALL CHIRPS

The question frequently asked is, when are they going to get Fayette Field in paying shape. There is ample time to get that matter attended to. There is no use getting the ground scraped and rolled until the stands are erected. The teams hauling the lumber will only destroy the diamond if it were laid out at this time. After the stands go up the ground will be taken care of. The fans need not worry over the players getting their practice, as the boys will work out with the Trotter team until Fayette Field is ready for them.

FORTUNES OVER NIGHT COME TO DEVOTEES OF THE SQUARED ARENA

Purses to be Offered in Dempsey-Carpenter Bout Will Run Over a Quarter Million Dollars.

By Duke Barry.

The strides that have been made in the boxing game recently can be attributed to the training that our soldier boys received while in the Army.

It was not long ago that those connected with the pastime were looked upon with ill favor. Fighters of a decade ago tried to look the part of a bruiser, more to intimidate their adversaries than anything else. James J. Corbett was the first man to put the game on a higher plane. Others followed his example with the result that today boxing is being taken up not only as a pastime by those of intelligence but as a means of reaping a lucrative livelihood. Some of our best mitt men are far superior intellectually to some of our nationally known bankers and business men.

The money that can be made in boxing has attracted men away from other branches of business that would be looked upon with better favor by the old fashioned class such as our grandmothers. Today many men whose "bringing up" was above par have turned to the boxing game to win fame and fortune. No one is suited physically to withstand the game, but we know many of the so called "trial" class that have entered boxing who not only reaped a tidy fortune out of the game but became more sturdy in body.

Boxing is being conducted better today than ever before. The boxing commissions appointed in the leading cities throughout the country have been successful in numerous instances in weeding out the undesirable class of followers of the game. The money that is being paid to the boxers of all classes is hardly believable. A fortune is being made all night by some boxer or other. When Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier agree to meet in their contest the purses that will be offered by the promoters will run over a quarter million dollars. They will each receive for their services in the coming bout more than some of our most successful business men would receive in a life time. To give our readers an idea of the money that has been paid for the various bouts since 1890, we have compiled the accompanying table, a good answer why the young men of today are taking boxing up as a profession:

1892—Dixon beat Skelly	17,500
1892—McAuliffe beat Myer	20,000
1892—Corbett beat Sullivan	45,000
1892—Dixon beat Pierce	11,000

The STRANGE CASE of CAVENDISH

RANDALL PARRISH

"Yes—when you talk so loud." Her soft voice scarcely reached the listeners. "But this time there was a good reason." She laughed. "You didn't think it was love, did you, dear?"

"Oh, out that out!" indignantly.

"You want more money, I suppose?"

"Well, of course," her voice hardening. "Naturally I feel that I should share in your good fortune. But the amount I want now, and must have to-night—to-night, John Cavendish—is not altogether for myself. I've heard from the West."

"My God! Has he been located?"

"Yes, and is safe for the present. Here, read this telegram. It's not very clear, but Beaton wants money and asks me to bring it."

"You? Why does he need you?"

"Lack of nerve, I guess; he's out of his element in that country. If it was the Bowery he'd do this sort of job better. Anyway, I'm going, and I want a roll. We can't either of us afford to lie down now."

Cavendish half smothered an oath. "How much do you want?"

"Ten thousand. I'm willing enough to split fifty-fifty. This Colorado job is getting to be expensive, dear. I wouldn't dare draw on you through the banks."

In the back booth Willis snarled: "God, things are going great." Then he bent his ear to sedulous attention, and again he could hear the voice of Cavendish.

"You've got to tell me what you're going to do with the money," it said.

The La Rue woman's answer could not be heard; evidently it was a whispered one, and therefore of almost importance. Came a pause, a clink of glass, and then a few straggling words filtered over the partition.

"But if the man should talk!"

"Forget it! Ned Beaton is an oyster. Besides, I've got the screws on him. Come on, Johnnie boy, don't be a fool. We are in this game and must play it out. It has been safe enough so far, and I know what I am doing now. You've got too much at stake to haggle over a few thousand, when the money has come to you as easily as this has. Do I get the money?"

He must have needed, for his voice no longer rose to a high pitch. Presently, when the orchestra began playing again, Miss Donovan and Willis judged the pair were giving their attention to the dinner. Finally, after an hour had passed, Cavendish emerged from the booth, went to the check room, and hurriedly left the cafe. Waiting only long enough to satisfy herself that Cavendish was gone, Celeste La Rue herself emerged from the booth and passed for a moment beside its bamboo curtains. Then turning suddenly, she made her way out toward the exit on the left, but to another small booth near the check room, and into this she disappeared.

But before she had started this short journey, a yellow piece of paper, closely folded, slipped from her belt where it had been tucked.

"It's the telegram! The one of which they were speaking," Miss Donovan's voice whispered dramatically as her eyes swept the tiny circle within their ambit.

At her words Willis was out of the booth. As Miss Donovan watched, she saw him pass by the folded envelope. What was wrong? But, no—suddenly she saw his handkerchief drop, saw him snatch it, and then turn and pick it up, and with it the telegram. Disappearing in the direction of the men's room, he returned a moment later, paid the check, and with Miss Donovan on his arm left the cafe.

Outside, and three blocks away from Steinway's, they paused under an arc light, and with shaking hands Willis showed her the message. The two, in the flickering rays, the girl read its torn and yet enlightening message.

"Colorado, May 10, 1915. 'Jim safe. Report and collect. Come with roll Monday sure we seen papers. Remember Haskell. NED.'"

"It's terribly cryptic, Jerry," she said to the other, "but two things we know from it."

"One is that La Rue's going to blow the burg some day—soon."

"The other, that 'Ned' is Ned Beaton, the man mentioned back there in Steinway's. Whatever his connection is, we don't know. I think we had better go to Farriss, don't you?"

"A good hunch," Willis replied, taking her arm.

In their enthusiasm they upset the custom of the office and broke into Farriss' fullest hour. Into his impatient ears they poured the story of what they had just learned, ending up by passing him the telegram.

"For a mere instant he glanced at them, then his lips began to move. 'Beaton—Ned—Ned Beaton—Ned Beaton,' he mused, and then sat bolt upright in his chair, while he banged the desk with a round, hard fist.

"You've run across something. I know that name. I know the man. Ned Beaton is a 'gun,' and he pulled his first job when I was doing 'police' in Philadelphia for the Record. Well, well, my children, this is splendid! And what next?"

"But, Mr. Farriss, where is he?" put in Stella Donovan. "Where was the message sent from? Colorado, yes, but where in Colorado? That's the thing to find out."

"I thought it might be the last word in the message—Haskell," ventured Willis.

Farriss, seizing an atlas, thumbed it until he found a map of Colorado. Together the three pored over it.

"There it is!" Stella Donovan cried suddenly. "Down toward the bottom. Looks like desert country."

"Pretty dry place for Celeste," laughed Willis. "I might call her up and kid her about it."

Farriss looked at him sourly. "You might get a raise in salary," he snapped sharply. "If you'd keep your mind on the job. What you can do is call up, say you're the detective business, and ask carefully about Beaton. That'll throw a scare into her. You've got her number?"

"Riverside 7833," Willis said in a businesslike voice.

He disappeared into the cluttered local room, to return a moment later white of face, bright of eye, and with lips parted.

"What's the dope?" Farriss shot at him.

"Nothing!" cried the excited young man. "Nothing except that fifteen minutes ago Celeste La Rue kissed the Beecher apartments good-by and, with trunk, puff and toothbrush, beat it."

"To Haskell?" added the city editor, "or my hair is pink. And by heaven, I believe there's a story there. What's more, I believe we can get it. It's blind chance, but we'll take it."

"Let Mr. Willis," began Miss Donovan.

"Mind your own business, Stella," commanded Farriss. "And see that your hat's on straight. Because within half an hour you're going to draw on the night cashier for five hundred dollars and pack your little portmanteau for Haskell. Work guardedly; query us when you have to; be sure of your facts, and consign your soul to God. Do I see you moving?"

And when Farriss looked again he did.

CHAPTER IV.

Miss Donovan Arrives.

When the long overland train paused a moment before the ancient box car that served as the depot for the town of Haskell, nestled in the gulch half a mile away, it deposited Miss Donovan almost in the arms of Carson, the station agent, and he, wary of the wiles of woman and the ethics of society, promptly turned her over to Jim Westcott, who had come down to inquire if the station agent held a telegram for him—a telegram that he expected from the East.

"She oughtn't to talk to the Timmons house, alone, Jim," Carson said. "This town is pay day up at the big mine, and the boys are havin' a—"

At this point, in view of this disclosure, Miss Donovan welcomed the courteous acquiescence of Westcott, whom she judged to be a man of thirty-one, with force and character—these written in the lines of his big body and his square, kind face.

"I'm Miss Stella Donovan of New York," she said directly.

"And I," he returned, with hat off to the deepening gloom, "am Jim Westcott, who plugs away at a mining claim over yonder."

"There!" laughed the girl frankly. "We're introduced. And I suppose we can start for the Timmons house."

As her words trailed off there came the sound of yelling, sharp cries and revolver shots from the gulch below where lights twinkled faintly.

Laughing warmly, Westcott picked up her valise, threw a "So-long" to

"The Drunken Fool," He Muttered Quietly.

Carson, and with Miss Donovan close behind him, began making for the distant lights of the Timmons house. As they followed the road, which paralleled a waterless stream, the girl began to draw him out, and he was amazed to find that for all of his rough appearance he was excellently educated and a gentleman of taste. Finally the reason came out.

"I'm a college man," he explained proudly. "So was my partner—same class. But one can't always remain in the admirable East, and three years

LATEST FASHIONS SHOWN IN GOVERNMENT CARTRIDGE SILK

Rising Habit

In the atmosphere of charm and loveliness, a Fashion Show, displaying garments made of the new United States government cartridge silk, opened in the Bush Terminal Sales Building in New York, the other day. Amidst beautiful draperies and hangings of this exquisite silk, this war-time fabric was displayed in many of its peace-time uses. A delegation of higher officials of the war department in Washington who for months had watched the laboratory processes to convert the crude fabric into a popular textile, attended the opening of the exhibition.

Living models displayed the latest styles in a setting of tapestries of cartridge silk. Little Lily Crompton, child dancer, who raised $3,000,000 in the last Liberty Loan drive, opened the fashion show.

At the signing of the Armistice the requirements of the War Department called for a production of five million yards of cartridge silk per month. More than thirty million yards of the fabric was left on the hands of the government. It had been used to make bags to contain propellant charges for cannon. It was pure silk, tested by the United States Bureau of Standards. Cotton, wool, or linen, would not do, but silk leaves no burning ash in the breach of a cannon.

The Government officials thought the fabric should be put to uses worthy of its character. They brought it to the attention of Irving T. Bush of New York. Mr. Bush called in F. A. McLane, a silk expert, who put a corps of chemists and processors on the task. After months of laboratory work, in which the silk was processed and dyed, a wonderful textile was produced in a panorama of more than thirty plain shades and in many designs.

Cartridge silk is a beautiful fabric resembling ratine linen, but it has none of the "crushing" faults of linen. It is wonderfully durable, and actually improves with washing. Leading customers and tailors of New York and Paris who have designed gowns of it are loud in their praise of the new cloth which drapes exquisitely.

Government cartridge silk is being made up into men's and boys' summer suits, opera cloaks, street dresses, blouses, lingerie, coats, sport suits, bathing suits, parasols, hats, and shoes, whose uppers will match the sport costume. It can be used for book covers, bags, draperies, awnings, tents and flags.

The wonderful silk comes in eleven prime grades ranging from light to very heavy. It is from 36 to 72 inches wide.

ago, he and I came here prospecting. Actually struck some pay-dirt, in the hills yonder, too, but sort of petered out on us. It was broken in two by some upheaval of nature. We were still trying to find it when my partner's father died and he went East to claim the fortune that was left. I struck the vein again—when my last dollar was gone. That was a month ago. I wired my old partner for help, but—"

He stopped, listening intently.

"They were hearing a small bridge over Bear creek, the sounds of Haskell's revelers growing nearer and louder. Suddenly they heard an oath and a shot, and the next moment a wild rider, lashing a foaming horse with a stinging quirt, was upon them. Westcott barely had time to swing the girl to safety as the tornado fell past.

"The drunken fool!" he muttered quietly. "A puncher riding for camp. There will be more up ahead probably."

His little act of heroism drew the man strangely near to Miss Donovan, and as they hurried along in the silence she felt that above all he was dependable, as if, too, she had known him months, aye years, instead of a scant hour. And in this strange country she needed a friend.

"Now that I've laid bare my past," he was saying, "don't you think you might tell me why you are here?"

The girl stiffened. To say that she was from the New York Star would close many avenues of information to her. No, the thing to do was to adopt some "stall" that would enable her to idle about as much as she chose. Then the mad horseman gave her the idea.

"Oh!" she exclaimed. "I forgot I had mentioned it. I'm assigned by Scribner's Magazine to do an article on 'The Old West. Is It Really Gone?' and, Mr. Westcott, I think I have a lovely snag."

A few moments later she thanked Providence for her precaution, for her companion resumed the story of his mining claim.

"It's mighty funny, I haven't heard from that purser. It isn't like him not to answer my wire. That's why I've waited every night at the depot. No, it's not like 'Pop,' even if he does take his leisure at the College Club."

Miss Donovan's spine tingled at the mention of the name. "Pop," she murmured, trying to be calm. "What was his other name?"

"Cavendish," Westcott replied. "Frederick Cavendish."

A gasp almost escaped the girl's lips. Here, within an hour, she had linked the many eastern clues of the Cavendish affair with one in the West. Was ever a girl so lucky? And immediately her brain began to work furiously as she walked along.

A sudden turn about the base of a large cliff brought them to Haskell, a single street running up the broadening valley, lined mostly with shacks, although a few more pretentious buildings were scattered here and there, while an occasional tent flapped its discolored canvas in the night wind.

They went forward, Westcott watchful and silent, the valise in one hand, the other grasping her arm. The narrow stretch of sidewalk was jammed with men, surging in and out through the open door of a saloon, and the two held to the middle of the road, which was lined with horses tied to long poles. Men reeled out into the street, and occasionally the sharp crack of some frolicsome revolver quizzed the air with horse shouts and bursts of drunken laughter. No other woman was visible, yet, apparently, particular attention was paid to their progress. But, the stream of men thickened perceptibly, until Westcott was obliged to shoulder them aside good-humoredly in order to open a passage. He released her arm and suddenly gripped the shoulder of a man passing. He was the town marshal.

"Say, Dan, I reckon this is your busy night, but I wish you'd help me run this lady through as far as Timmons; this bunch of lecherous appear to be milling, and we're plus stalled."

The man turned and stared at them. Short, stockily built, appearing at first view almost grotesque under the broad brim of his hat, Stella, recognizing the marshal, was conscious only of a clean-shaven face, a square jaw and a pair of stern blue eyes.

"Oh, is that you, Jim?" he asked, briefly. "Lord, I don't see why a big book like you should need a guardian. The 'P' Purdon ma, ma!" and he tossed his hat. "Stand back there, you fellows. Come on, folks!"

The little marshal knew his business, and it was also evident that the crowd knew the little marshal. Drunk and quarrelsome as many of them were, they made way—the more obstreperous sullenly, but the majority in a spirit of tough good humor. The three passed straight through the surging mass in the man-crowded lobby of the disreputable hotel.

At the desk, wide-eyed with excitement, Miss Donovan took a service-worn pen proffered by landlady Pete Timmons, whose gray whiskers were as unkempt as his hair, and registered her name.

"A telegram came today for you, ma'am," Peter said in a cracked voice, and tossed it over.

Miss Donovan tore it open. It was from Farriss. It read:

"If any clues, advise immediately. Willis digging hard. Letter of instruction follows. FARRISS."

The girl folded the message, thrust it in her jacket pocket, then turning to the marshal and Westcott, gave each a firm hand.

"You're both more than kind," she said gratefully.

"H—, ma'am," Dan, deprecating, "that wasn't nothin'." And he hurried into the street as loud cries sounded outside.

"Good-night, Miss Donovan," Westcott said simply. "If you are ever frightened or in need of a friend, call on me. I'll be in town two days yet, and after that Pete here can get word to me." Then, with an adieu, honest gaze, he searched her eyes a moment before he turned and stroled toward the rude cigar case.

"All right, now, ma'am!" Pete Timmons said, picking up her valise. The girl nodded, and together they went up the rude stairs to her room, where Timmons paused at the door.

"Well, I'm glad you're here," he said, moving away. "We've been waiting for you to show. I may be wrong, ma'am, but I'd bet my belt that you're the lady that's been expected by Ned Beaton."

"You're mistaken," she replied shortly.

As she heard him clatter down the stairs Stella Donovan of the New York Star knew that her visit would not be in vain.

The alcove waited, leaning against the door. Timmons came down the stairs, eager to ask questions.

"Lady friend o' yours, Jim?" he asked. "If I'd a knowed she was comin' I'd a saved a better room."

"I have never seen her until tonight, Pete. She got off the train and Carson asked me to escort her uptown—it was dark, you know."

"What do you suppose she's comin' here for?"

"Not the slightest idea; I take it that's her business."

"Sure! but a feller can't help wonderin', can he? Donovan," he mused, peering at the name "what's Irish, I want. He brought her up from the depot, an' kin talk English. Say, Jim, this here is a shorthorn from New York, named Beaton, an' he seems ter be powerfully interested in skirts—Beaton, Mr. Jim Westcott."

URGES PEOPLE TO FIGHT CATARRH WITH SIMPLE HOME MADE REMEDY

Can Make Pint at Home and Costs Little, Says Leading Druggist of Covington, Ky., Who Has Made Special Study of Catarrh.

Says: Inflamed Nostrils Invite Influenza

People who say that catarrh is a disease not to be taken seriously are harshly rebuked by a Kentucky druggist who has for years been much interested in the growth of this loathsome, yet altogether too common disease.

He claims that the sore, tender, inflamed membrane of the nostrils and throat is a prolific breeding ground for germs—not only the germs of influenza, but many other kinds as well.

If people would only stop experimenting for two weeks and try a simple remedy made of Mentholated Arine mixed with enough boiled water to make a pint, half of the catarrh in this country would be abolished. It's really no joke for people who don't know about this simple recipe to be constantly sniffing and snuffling, blowing and hawking, when all these obvious symptoms as well as the foul discharge can be made to disappear in a few days.

Ask for three-quarters of an ounce of Mentholated Arine—that's all you need and after you have mixed it with enough boiled water to make a pint, gargle the throat twice daily and sniff or spray some up the nostrils, as directed.

The tender nostrils will soon lose their soreness, heal up, and be clean and healthy.

Important Reminder: Just as soon as you see the family cat in a cold in the hand, check it at once with this same medicine.

A TRIAL WILL CONVINCE YOU.

Nothing that we could say would so thoroughly convince you of the value of Chamberlain's Tablets as a personal trial. We can tell you of thousands who have been permanently cured of chronic constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache and disorders of the stomach and liver, but this will have little weight with you as compared to a personal trial. That always convinces.

WHY THE RAILROADS AND BROTHERHOODS FOUGHT THE STRIKE

Contracts With the Brotherhoods Could Not Be Broken.

DISCREDIT AND DISRUPT

The Organizations Had the Railroad Made Concessions to One Class of Employees; Series of Strikes Would Have Been Started by Other Classes.

In explanation of the reasons why the railroad and the brotherhoods joined hands to fight the recent strike of switchmen and other yard employees as Railroad Age in the current issue says:

"Some months before the new railroad law was passed the various classes of railway employees prevented a President Wilson and the Railroad Administration demands for advances in wages aggregating about $1,000,000. After the law was enacted committees representing the companies and the employees were appointed to negotiate regarding these proposed advances. No committee of railway officers could have been expected to assume the heavy responsibility of granting such a large advance in wages, which would be made directly and entirely at the expense of the public. Consequently the two committees, agreed to disagree. The officers of the large railroad labor brotherhoods bitterly opposed the enactment of the labor provisions of the new law. Instead, however, of calling a strike, they bowed with unexpected good grace to public sentiment, and prepared to present their case to the Railroad Labor Board. Unfortunately, President Wilson had not appointed the board. The railroad labor brotherhoods, like many other unions, contain an element of radicals who believe in 'direct action,' both as the best means of getting promptly from the employers what the employees want now, and as one of the best means of making the kind of industrial and social trouble which ultimately, as they think, will cause the complete overthrow of the present system of private ownership and management of property and the substitution of the soviet system. These radicals welcome every opportunity to embarrass and harass labor leaders who are disposed to use peaceful means of accomplishing their ends before resorting to strike.

"The situation presented when the wage negotiations between the committees of the railway companies and the labor organizations were terminated afforded the radicals a good chance to make trouble. It gave them an opportunity to say that the employees had waited long enough to have their wage demands settled, that the old labor organizations and their leaders had shown incapacity for dealing with the situation, and that the only way the employees could get what they were entitled to was by breaking away from the old organizations and going on strike. With the spirit of unrest prevailing among all classes of labor, this kind of talk was bound to cause some trouble. It first caused a strike of switching crews in the yards in Chicago and then similar outbreaks in other parts of the country.

"The leaders of the large labor brotherhoods have been put in a difficult position by these developments. Their organizations have contracts with the various railways. The strikes which have occurred, being by members of the organizations, are in direct violation of these contracts. The railway companies can say that there is no use in making contracts with organizations which cannot carry them out, and to demand that the brotherhoods shall help them fight and win the strikes both as a matter of good faith and to show that it is worth while to make contracts with them. The brotherhoods had a strong incentive to fight the strikes, not only in the fact that they endanger their contract relations with the railways, but also in the fact that any success the strikers might have in getting concessions from the railways which the brotherhoods have been unable to get would tend to discredit and disrupt the brotherhoods.

"The railways could not well negotiate with the strikers, because the railways have contracts with the brotherhoods, and any recognition of the strikers by them, through negotiations or otherwise, would promptly embroil them with the brotherhoods. In the background, also, are the demands for $1,000,000,000 in advances in wages, which railway employees, as a whole, are making. If the wage demands of striking employees of any particular class in any part of the country should be granted it would at once become necessary, on pain of strikes elsewhere, to make similar advances to all other employees of the same class throughout the country. But there are well-recognized relationships between the wages of different classes of railway employees, and if, except under the mandate of some authoritative body such as the Railroad Labor Board, an advance in wages should be given to one class of employees throughout the country corresponding advances would have to be given at once to other classes throughout the country or there would be strikes by them."

Style is harder to get than all-wool

THERE would be no distinction for Society Brand Clothes if their only virtue was all-wool. Any maker could give you this if he wished. But style is a matter of creative designing and careful, costly workmanship.

SOCIETY BRAND clothes for young men and men who stay young set the fashion in clothing styles.

HIRSH, WICKWIRE clothes for more conservative dressers. Like Society Brand are correct as to style and strictly all wool as to material, but they are designed primarily for men of quieter tastes.

MICHAELS-STERN clothes are pre-eminently "Value First" in every sense, offering most excellent men's wear at conservative prices.

Many new patterns for spring and summer, —new touches of smartness in cut, new features that give distinction to your appearance are shown in all these models which are the three greatest brands of men's clothing sold any where.
